1. Maybe not right now, but I fear it will be in the very long run. Look at the current world. It's spinning in a negative vibe, with terrorist attacks, wars, violent behavior headlining the newspapers every day. I assume that there is a connection between the way we behave and the current climate changes, since I believe that all is energy. You, me, the rainforest, the ocean, you name it; everything is connected. Therefore I think this negative flow of energy is impacting the functioning of planet Earth and might eventually lead to its destruction.
2. There are indications. Look at the climate changes and the warming of the globe. Also the theory of Quantum Physics plays an important part if we talk about the human consciousness and the critical mass needed to establish a change. Furthermore I did some research over the past 8 years in the world of the supernatural for some fiction books I wrote. Independently of each other a considerable number of psychics were giving me more or less the same prediction.
3. Sure. NASA recently reported that a massive iceberg broke off in July from Antarctica. It was the size of the state of Delaware. Can you imagine? Although it still has not been confirmed what really caused the calving, as it's called, the warmer ocean water might be one of the reasons. They also reported that the recent massive fires in Alaska and Northern Canada were caused by lightning storms. These storms are likely to move farther north due to climate warming and will impact the northern landscape.
4. That's correct. To my surprise these mediums were independently of each other talking about a major disaster that would happen within the next century. It sounded to me like some sort of Apocalypse, a cleanup of the Earth as we have seen this in the past. Most of them were talking about a massive overflow of water. The majority of the world's population would drown as a result. Some others referred to a series of related disasters with a grand finale leading to the indicated cleanup.

5. Now that you mention it, indeed, it was a bit awkward. For my first book Quest to the Unknown I interviewed a medium with an extraordinary life. She had an extremely difficult youth; among other violations she was abused. As an adult she had to work 24/7 to keep her household going, suffered from various bouts of cancer, a heart attack and many more obstacles, but still kept going to help others with her gift. You know, at the time I thought her story was unique, inspiring me to write about it. But during my years of research, other similar stories crossed my path. I met various mediums who were telling me exactly the same things. Most of them lived under extreme circumstances in their youth. Beaten, abandoned by their parents, abuse--you name it. One of them even lost 10 babies in her attempt to start a family. And like the first medium all were standing strong, focused on helping others.
6. Well, what's the definition of a psychic anyway? Is it someone whose basic instinct developed a bit more than others, enabling them to hear, smell, sense and observe more? If that's your definition I think most of us are a bit of a psychic, including me. If however you think that a medium is someone gifted with a supernatural talent since birth, I have to disappoint you, I don't belong to this club!
7. Let me start by saying I am not a scientist, so bear with me while I try to explain the theory of Quantum Physics. In short, I think it is correct to say that energy particles which are floating around can impact each other. A more organized particle will change a lesser organized particle once they meet. They have a lasting effect on each other, even though these parts are physically no longer together after the initial encounter. The changed lesser organized particle will influence another less organized particle on its way and so on and so on. In theory the field in which these energy particles are floating is "upgraded" to the level of the higher organized particles. The collective awareness process of the human mind works accordingly. Once a critical mass has been reached at a certain level it will affect the thinking of others.

- 8. You can imagine that people who are voicing bad ideas to people who are lesser organized in their awareness process and can easily be influenced, particularly in times of economic downturn, taking over these ideas and spreading them around like wildfire. A good example is the growth of terrorist organizations. Also look at what happened in the past with Hitler. His awareness process was extremely developed and in that way he was able to influence an entire nation.
- 9. I believe that each and every person harbors something good, a sort of shining light somewhere within. I thought: if this theory of Quantum Physics is doing its job for people with very evil, bad ideas as history proves and we experience in our day-to-day life, it could also be applied when we have peaceful, loving ideas. That's exactly why I initiated Loveable Light to make people aware that if we join forces by sharing and strengthening each other with positive, loving thoughts we can change the world into a better place. Everybody is in fact Loveable Light's very soul. I encourage people to post any positive message on my Facebook page, so other people can read it and be inspired by others. In other words, I am trying to create an improved awareness of the human mind with the aim of creating a loving, peaceful change.
- 10. In my research I also attended a Munay-Ki class. In the syllabus there was a prophecy mentioned. This was all in the spirit of the theory of Quantum Physics. It said that we could take the first step to world peace if 144,000 people come together at the same time to watch the sun rise. So many positive minded humans would lead to a critical mass, influencing and impacting others. I didn't reach the 144,000 by far, but it was a first step.
- 11. Munay-Ki means love energy, the energy of the heart. Through a number of specific initiations you'll get both emotionally and physically cleaned up, making you susceptible for change, focused on a new world in which mankind is more connected with the Earth.

12. Yes, I did although the Munay-Ki master who performed the initiations said I didn't get the standard ones. When she stood in front of me, she felt that it was better to adjust these initiations. I didn't mind. For me that was okay.
13. I was doing research so in this case I decided to experience how it felt and if it indeed did something with me.
14. Well, first of all after these initiations I started with the Loveable Light initiative. At the same time I decided that life is short and full of surprises so I definitely had to finish the translations of my books and get published in the US. Also, I looked for a job that was more suitable for my private situation, even though it was not in line with the level I took on in the past. You see, I am taking care of a mother with Alzheimer's, so I need time for that. You can't do that with a hectic regional management role. Was this all because of Munay-Ki? Who knows? In fact, I don't care if it was or not. The most important thing was that I opened my eyes and realized what really matters in life.
